

The Vineland Historical and Antiquarian Society presents

“The Paradox of Seabrook Farms”

This extraordinary documentary tells the story of Seabrook Farms, the biggest industrial vegetable producer in the United States in the 1950’s, where a diverse workforce of post-World War II European refugees, interned Japanese Americans and African Americans lived and worked. The stories of those laborers, and the vibrant multicultural community it both harbored and exploited, are highlighted in the film.

Date: Sunday April 12, 2026

Location: Landis Theater, 830 East Landis Avenue, Vineland NJ 08360

Doors Open: 12 noon

Movie Screening: 2pm

Panel Discussion: Helga Merits, John Seabrook, Masaru Nakawatase, Helle Gawrylewski and Gloria Kates immediately following the movie.

John Seabrook will be selling and signing copies of his book

“The Spinach King”

Tickets: $15

Purchase tickets: <https://www.zeffy.com/en-US/ticketing/the-paradox-of-seabrook-farms-movie-event> or visit www.discovervinelandhistory.org